

What do your eyes say?

What do your eyes say when you look at me?

What do they whisper in silence?

What does that sweet look say about me?

I dive deep into your eyes and ask myself:

What do you think? What do you dream? What fills the world inside your mind?

Your eyes say the words that your voice cannot,
revealing truths that only the heart understands.

Through them I see your love,
your joy, your perfect world.

I see how you admire me...
your perfectly imperfect older sister, but simply perfect for you.
And through your eyes I learn that you are also everything to me.

I know I will always be by your side walking with you through this life.
And if ever the world were to separate us,
I will cross the seas to find you.

Because, dear brother, I am sure that we choose ourselves long before we are born.
When I look into your eyes, I know you, I recognize you,
because the eyes never forget what has touched your heart.